About CCT Research

We are a clinical site network embedding research studies in the comfort and convenience of patient communities. By providing easy access to care, we help patients suffering from debilitating diseases now, while bringing hope for a cure to future generations.

Distance, frequency of travel, and time-involvement while dealing with the symptoms of their condition are some of the biggest struggles that patients experience when participating in a study— making it difficult to complete.

Advancements in medicine are delayed when clinical research studies don't have enough patients that fully complete a trial. We believe bringing clinical research studies to patient care communities is critical to making life-saving treatments available more efficiently.
